 Moorjam bin Ahmad bin Mohammad bin Ahmad al-Ahadhi, son of Imam al-Ahadhi, the teacher of the Prophet Muhammad, peace be upon him, was murdered by the Kharijites in the Battle of Karbala. His body was thrown into a well, and his head was sent to Damascus. His family was persecuted and his wife was stripped of her belongings. His death was mourned by his followers who continued to remember him as a great scholar and a scholar of the Hadith. His grave is located in the city of Damascus, and it is visited by thousands of pilgrims every year. His works are still studied and discussed by scholars today.
